

SHORT-TERM RESEARCH GRANTS FLAD / DGLAB - ANTT | 2023

The Luso-American Development Foundation (FLAD) <https://www.flad.pt/> carries out and sponsors actions for the promotion of Portuguese Culture in the United States with the aim of establishing and fostering the cultural and scientific interchange between the two countries.

The Portuguese General Directorate for Books, Archives and Libraries (DGLAB) <http://dglab.gov.pt/> is a public service with a national scope, under the tutelage of the Minister of Culture. It is responsible for, among other functions, the conservation, processing and diffusion of heritage collections that cover ten centuries of documentation of all kinds and genres. It includes the National Archive of Torre do Tombo (ANTT) <http://antt.dglab.gov.pt/>, a structure under DGLAB, considered one of the oldest and most valuable archives in the world.

The DGLAB-ANTT and FLAD wish to host students, professors and researchers affiliated with U.S higher education institutions, in order to provide them with a fruitful stay in Portugal, supporting them with adequate means to develop their research work, and subsidizing their travel and stay.

The Regulation below defines the conditions for obtaining short-term grants awarded by the Luso-American Development Foundation (FLAD) for research on Portuguese history, culture, language, and other related themes, to be developed within the scope of the Portuguese General Directorate for Books, Archives and Libraries - National Archive of Torre do Tombo (DGLAB- ANTT).
